Women Indorse Direct Primary And Dry Rule

State Federation Meeting in Commodore Opposes Permitting Return of Light Wines and Beer

Hits High School "Frats" No Opposition to Ticket Naming Mrs. Booth, of Plattsburg, as President

Prohibition and the direct primary law were indorsed by the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs at their convention at the Hotel Commodore yesterday in the most lively session of their week's deliberations. Over the direct primary resolution there was a difference of opinion between the Republican independents and the organization women. Mrs. R. Talbot Perkins, who was a suffrage worker and once an officer in the League of Women Voters, introduced the resolution. The opposition was veiled in the remark of Miss Helen Varick Boswell, chairman of the women's division of the New York County Committee, that she did not wish to vote against the resolution but only to point out that the chief argument against the direct primary was its expense and the fact that in many sections of the state, particularly rural counties, the voters did not avail themselves of its privileges.

Passed Amid Applause
The resolution called for a restoration of the direct primary system, and amid loud applause it was voted to send a copy to Governor Miller and each member of the New Legislature.

Mrs. Perkins, speaking in favor of her resolution, said: "I am an enrolled Republican and I have been to many conventions, but I am convinced that the direct primary is the only way to reach high political purity unless the direct primary is restored."

An upper woman declared: "The political system taken teeth out of the woman's vote by abolishing the primary."

Mrs. Ida Sammis, the first Republican woman to be elected to the Legislature, said that thirty-seven states have direct primary systems and that the women voters should not be misled because a "narrow group of people" are opposing the primaries.

The federation voted to record as being unalterably opposed to the return of light wines and beer through the liquor or national legislation. The resolution was introduced by Mrs. Leigh D. Colvin, of the committee on temperance and law enforcement.

"Americans and Englishmen who have the best interests of their countries at heart should enthusiastically indorse and support every means of preventing misunderstanding between the United States and Great Britain, and bringing into closer bonds of friendship the peoples of these two great nations," said Mr. Weeks. "This is the task to which the Sulgrave institution has dedicated itself and in which it is admirably succeeding."

The status of Burke, friend of the Colonists in the trying days of the Revolution, was unveiled in a city park and a bust of the late Viscount James Bryce, long British Ambassador to Washington, was unveiled in a corridor of the capital.

"America has never had so stronger friends than Burke and Bryce," Secretary Weeks declared, "and certainly they understood America and its ideals and aspirations better than most Englishmen of their respective times."

Mrs. Ralph C. Harrison Burned to Death in Home

Wife of Late California Justice Was Alone in Her Residence at Time

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—Mrs. Ella Reid Harrison, widow of Judge Ralph C. Harrison, was killed early this morning in a fire which destroyed her home in Carmel-by-the-Sea. She was alone in the house. Neighbors discovered the fire about 8:30 o'clock, but it was beyond control. Mrs. Harrison's body was found in the ruins.

Mrs. Harrison spent yesterday at Del Monte and Monterey. Neighbors saw her return about 6 p. m. That was the last seen of her alive.

She was born in Xenia, Ohio, about sixty-five years ago. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Reid, died during her childhood, and she was brought up by her uncle, the late Whitelaw Reid. She was graduated from a school in Philadelphia, and in 1892 was married to Judge Ralph C. Harrison, of the Supreme Court of California.

Placed had been drawn for a library which Mrs. Harrison intended to erect as a memorial to her husband on a site which she purchased in Carmel. Her husband for twenty-seven years was president of the board of trustees of the San Francisco Public Library. They had a home in this city was destroyed in the fire of 1906. Mrs. Harrison moved to Carmel about three years ago, soon after her husband's death.

The Little Theatre in Carmel, recently erected by the Arts and Crafts Club, owes its existence to help given to it by Mrs. Harrison. Two stepsisters, Robert W. Harrison, Deputy State Attorney General, and Richard C. Harrison, an attorney, both of whom live in this city, survive her.

Parade of Autos Marks 5th Day Of Safety Drive

Crippled Children View Avenue in Fifty Cars Placarded to Show How Needless Their Hurts Were

Boy Scouts Handle Traffic Only Five Fatal Mishaps Reported Yesterday as Against 14 a Year Ago

Observance of Automobile Day, the fifth in the seven days' drive of the Safety Institute of America to diminish avoidable accidents, was taken part in yesterday by the Automobile Association of America, the Boy Scouts of America and the Electrical Show at Grand Central Palace.

About fifty automobiles contributed by the A. A. A. placarded with safety warnings and containing several hundred children, some crippled, gathered from various institutions paraded down Fifth Avenue from 110th Street to Washington Square, where the children were entertained. The message of the placards suggested obvious methods by which the yearly toll of crippled children might be materially decreased.

A group of 100 Boy Scouts directed traffic under police supervision on Sixth and Seventh avenues from Fourteenth to Twenty-third streets, and in Broadway from Sixty-fourth to Seventy-second street, respectively, for five minutes.

The boys had first been instructed in traffic laws, and in Broadway from Sixty-fourth to Seventy-second street, respectively, for five minutes.

Up to a late hour yesterday only five fatal accidents were reported, as compared with fourteen for the same day last year. This makes a total of sixteen accidents for the first five days of the present campaign as against fifty-eight for the corresponding period during 1921.

The use of electrical appliances were stressed at the Electrical Show yesterday. They were: "1. Don't connect more than one appliance to the same socket."

"2. Don't leave an electric iron connected while answering a telephone or a call at the door."

"3. Don't leave your curling iron turned on when you go to bed."

"4. Don't insert the plug before turning off the current."

The Safety Institute announced that in observing to-day as Industrial Day 6,000 industrial plants throughout the city will hold safety rallies.
